This sounds excellent! Your experience is impressive. My two cents is provided in the attachment. In the first sentence I was trying to think of a different way to say policy advisor for literacy for state initiatives because it seemed as if there were too many "fors" but I could not think of a better way! Would it be correct to say literacy policy advisor for state initiatives? I am so happy for you with your new job!!

Would either of you be willing to provide feedback on my bio? As you all know, I'm not ever confident with what I write (for obvious reasons – I'm willing to accept that I just plain suck at it), so I'll take as much feedback as you can give me!

At this link you can find some of my teammates bios (for examples):
