Mary Laura – I do not have that, but am copying Stu. His office would have the amended plans. And, yes, categorical funds are retained by the districts for the specified purpose of the funding.

Linda,
Thanks for this. Do you have the records/paperwork showing what changes the districts is making as required in the last section of the law? (pasted here for you). Who approves those changes, or is it just a formality? And can you send the paperwork from those six districts that submitted the changes?
(d) If a district school board transfers funds from its research-based reading instruction allocation, the board must also submit to the Department of Education an amendment describing the changes that the district is making to its reading plan approved pursuant to paragraph (9)(d).

Also, for those districts who have unexpended reading allocation funds, do they roll over, and if so, are those funds still considered reading funds?
Thanks – I know you are swamped right now.

Mary Laura – see column G which shows the six districts that utilized the flexibility for reading funds during the past year. Please let me know if you need anything else.

Linda,
Can you tell me how many districts are currently (or at least from the most recent report) using their reading funds for other things? If it is easier to get the answer from Just Read, I'm happy to ask them and not burden you. Just let me know, and thanks.

Mary Laura

 1. Funds for student transportation.
 2. Funds for safe schools.
 3. Funds for supplemental academic instruction.
 4. Funds for research-based reading instruction.
