ATLANTA - Legislation is moving through the General Assembly that would repeal nearly three-dozen education laws, many enacted during the stormy tenure of ex-Superintendent of Schools Linda Schrenko. Others were outdated or never implemented. The list of things to nix came from a commission appointed by Gov. Nathan Deal that looked at ways to give more flexibility to local school districts...

By Patrick McCallister For Hometown News VOLUSIA COUNTY - Schoolyard bullying has been going on since there have been schoolyards. Now, however, emerging technologies have given bullies power that extends well beyond the borders of the school. Culinary students at the Frank H. Peterson Academies of Technology take food safety and restaurant industry courses to better prepare them for the workforce. Jacksonville's two technical schools have drastically improved their FCAT scores, which is good news for businesses that hire these high school graduates. A. Philip Randolph Academies went from an F in the 2009-...

So much for anti-education Gov. Rick Scott's claims that he is "doing more with less" by steering as many students as possible toward the FCAT-exempt Florida Virtual School, while simultaneously looking for any and all loopholes to undo the voter-mandated class-size initiative so denigrated by his predecessor. The newly released "ranking" of all 67 school districts based solely on FCA...

In his State of the Union address on the night of Jan. 24, President Barack Obama presented a forceful case for keeping a college education affordable for all Americans. If only Florida's lawmakers would do the same. Wednesday, the Appropriates Committee of state House of Representatives approved a spending plan that includes an 8 percent tuition increase for higher education. Senate ...

LOS ANGELES — Prosecutors declined to file attempted fondling charges 18 years ago against an elementary school teacher now suspected of taking bondage-style photographs of children in his class, saying that they didn't have enough evidence. The investigation came after a 10-year-old girl claimed elementary school teacher Mark Berndt reached ...

(Orlando Sentinel © 02/03/2012)

A special lottery fund created to reward schools for boosting grades has been cut to the point that the state Department of Education wasn't sure there would be enough to go around this year. The $119 million fund, known as the state's school recognition program, rewards schools with lottery money that have improved a letter grade or kept an A on the state's A-through-F ranking. But since 2006 ...

At least one person who showed up to speak during Wednesday night's school board meeting never got to air her views on the search for the new superintendent. (St. Petersburg Times © 02/03/2012)

Florida FCAT scores Numbers don't tell whole story I see some glaring issues with the rankings of K-12 public schools in Florida. First, methodology. The rankings are based only on Florida Comprehensive Assessment Test scores, which are a small sliver of the educational pie. If we want to rank schools, we should develop a formula that helps paint a complete picture of what happens in the ...

This is probably the predictable result when you have a Florida Senate presided over by a petulant crybaby angry over not getting his way. Senate President Mike Haridopolos, R-The Blue Boy of Apalachee Parkway, got his pantaloons in a wad because one of his minions had the audacity to commit Tallahassee's most egregious of mortal sins — an act of actual governance. And for that, fellow...
