Dear Friends,

Next Wednesday, February 1, 2012, will be the first ever National Digital Learning Day. On this day, teachers, students, parents and supporters will be participating in a nationwide campaign to celebrate effective teachers, policies and practices that empower each and every student to receive a customized education. Through digital learning every student has access to an education path, pace, place that best fits their learning style.

The video below details how the power of digital learning has transformed the lives of students. Please join us in celebrating Digital Learning Day. Feel free to share this video to spread the message of Digital Learning, "It's time to take action to…ensure every student experiences personalized learning with great teaching."
