I'm also not very good at taking no for an answer. So, I think I will call Ryan unless you would advise otherwise. Also, do you have the two pager that was originally sent out describing their ideas? I can't find it and feel like I've looked through every C4C email that we've ever had!

Deb, I don't think the reason Kern gave is a good reason for not funding a state that has a good plan. You can never tell with political climate what will work/not work.

Tony did tell me that kern is very "hands on" with their projects so it may be a blessing for you.

Paula can work with your staff to set up a time to talk. Looking forward to it.

Patricia,

Thank you for looking into this for us. The news is disappointing, but I'm not really surprised. We'll keep moving forward!

I have a small project that is exciting that I want to run past you to see if you having any possible funding ideas. I'll give you a call.

Thanks much!

Deborah

Deb and Chris,

I have been trying to follow up with Ryan Olson with the Kern Family Foundation to see which of our chiefs made it to the next round of consideration for their funding grant. I've been particularly concerned since you were not getting any feedback directly from Kern.

I finally was able to talk with Ryan today.

He said that all the chiefs (except Florida) put a very strong showing in their proposals to implement a principal recruitment and training system. The Kern family members are interested in moving forward with Indiana and Oklahoma.

Specifically, Ryan mentioned both of you as having really good proposals. However, the Kern family members are leery of the political environment that exists in your state to actually make the program sustainable over the long run.

Ryan told me that he was going to try to get back with each chief with feedback in the next month. I wanted you to go ahead and know.

Patricia

p.s. we will continue to look for other philanthropists who are interested in backing efforts of our chiefs. We hope more opportunities will arise after/during the summit in October in San Francisco. The Philanthropy Roundtable membership will be attending our summit – they are hosting their annual event the day before our summit and encouraging their members to stay.
